ABSTRACT

This directory contains information about partner schools throughout the National Network for Educational Renewal (NNER). Partner schools are intended to provide exemplary education for all preschool through high school students enrolled, assist with professional preparation of prospective teachers, provide continuing education for professionals, and promote inquiry leading to the continuing renewal of schools. Following a description of partner schools' common values and purposes and a listing of NNER contacts at institutions of higher education connected with NNER and the partner schools, the partner schools are listed by state. Each listing groups schools under the local institution of higher education that is participating in the NNER. The school listings include address, principal, telephone number, name of local school district with address, and name and telephone numbers (including electronic network address) of NNER facilitator for that school. The states containing partner schools are California, Colorado, Connecticut, Hawaii, Maine, Missouri, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. (JB)

PARTNER SCHOOLS

Sixteen settings in fourteen states are working as members of the National Network for Educational Renewal to simultaneously renew schools and the education of educators. Central in this effort are the arrangements made at each location for the joining of higher education and Pre-12 schooling -- arrangements commonly referred to as professional development schools.

In addition to calling them professional development schools, other terms are used interchangeably: key schools, demonstration schools, professional practice schools, professional development centers. At the Center for Educational Renewal we have chosen to call them partner schools, in part because professional development school is a term that is applied to too many different kinds of institutions. Also, we are using "partner school" as our preferred term because it is essential that these arrangements be operated by a partnership of the university's school, college or department of education, the college of arts and sciences, and the schools in which the clinical experiences will occur.

Partner schools developed by sites of the National Network for Educational Renewal share a commitment to the 19 postulates enumerated by John I. Goodlad in Teachers for Our Nation's Schools. Each of these postulates has a bearing on the way in which partner schools are created and operated with the 15th speaking most directly to the subject.

> Programs for the education of educators must assure for each candidate the availability of a wide array of laboratory settings for simulation, observation, hands-on experiences, and exemplary schools for internships and residencies; they must admit no more students to their programs than can be assured these quality experiences.

In addition to the 19 Postulates, NNER settings share common values which influence the way in which they approach their overall mission of simultaneous renewal of schools and the education of educators. These shared beliefs include the following:

> Partner schools of the NNER assure that all learners have equitable access to knowledge.
>
> Partner schools recognize and honor diversity, commit to multicultural curricula and culturally responsive practice, prepare individuals for active participation in a democratic society, and promote social justice.
>
> Partner schools contribute to the growth of students as citizens in a democratic society, as contributors to a healthy economy, and as fully human individuals versed in the arts and ideas that help them take advantage of their talents. In short, they are schools prepared to enculturate learners for participation in a democratic society.
>
> Partner schools enable educators to make educational decisions with students and other stakeholders.

Partners create educative communities which seek to develop a more just and sustainable society.

Purpose

This directory includes information about partner schools throughout the NNER. It has been prepared to facilitate the various NNER settings' efforts to learn from each other and to make it possible for people outside the network to make contact with NNER sites.

Definition

Partner schools simultaneously provide (1) an exemplary education for all Pre-12 students enrolled, (2) assist with the professional preparation of prospective teachers and other educators, (3) provide continuing education for professionals, and (4) promote inquiry leading to the continuing renewal of schools. Governance and funding are joint responsibilities of the participating school districts and institutions of higher education. Clinical experiences in partner schools are collaboratively planned as integrated parts of the education of educators.

Each NNER setting is unique. Among the sixteen settings involved are many different types of institutions of higher education and schools which serve a variety of student populations. It is not surprising, therefore, that there are differences in partner schools at the different locations. Some of these differences are matters of development. That is, some settings have been working with partner schools for seven or eight years while others are just initiating such arrangements. Other differences are related to the clients being served and the missions of the institutions. However, in spite of these differences, NNER sites have begun the process of defining expectations they have in common for their partner schools.

A separate document "partner schools" prepared in January 1995 details expectations which have been established within the NNER for partner schools. Copies of that document may be obtained by contacting Joan Waiss at (206) 543-6230.
